

Vietnamese Heritage Museum

KHANH LE

EDITOR

Khanh Le is a recent graduate from UC Berkeley's masters' and teaching credential program, where she received the opportunity to grow as an English educator. She was born and raised in Oakland, California. Her professional goals include being able to teach both Ethnic Studies and English one day. In her undergraduate years at UC Davis, she was involved in community organizing efforts, supporting Southeast Asian youth in their goals towards higher education. Outside of teaching, she has a passion for the beauty industry, where she plans to expand her learning as a certified ombré powder brow artist. She is currently an English teacher at Leadership Public School Hayward in the Bay Area.